Toni, Here are the numbers I calculated from the Cost Recovery spreadsheet. I came up with $8.3 million for Total Owed and $160,000 for the Payment Plan, the rest of the numbers look good.

$8,274,628.47	Total Owed
$3,350,470.21	Collections
$161,596.79	Payment Plan
$27,866.53	Repaid
$1,917,196.50	Active Billing

Hi Tammy:
Phuong Le, from Associated Press, is back to working on her derelict vessel story. Can you verify her conclusions below?

She'll need us to get back to her early next week.

Thanks!

Hi Toni,

Thanks for your time on this.

OK, by my calculations, this is what I see from this spreadsheet:

- _ Since 2003, boat owners have only repaid about $28,000 of the total $8.9 million owed in the past decade.
- _ The agency is actively seeking payment of nearly $2 million, and a handful of people are on payment plans for another roughly $150,000.
- _ Meanwhile, an additional $3.3 million have been sent to collections.
- _ In many cases, the state agency hasn't been able to collect other amounts, because owners haven't been identified, have died, declared bankruptcy or determined to have no assets to go after.
